FR. COUGHLIN'S PREDICTION

Believes There Will Be No Choice For President In General Election

Rev. Fr. Charles E. Coughlin, founder of the National Union for Social Justice, said Tuesday "I believe the election of the President this year will be thrown into the House of Representatives."

Fr. Coughlin, in a press conference, made the prediction in response to a request for his estimate of the size vote the Lemke-O'Brien Union Party ticket will poll in November. He said the National Union for Social Justice alone can contribute 10,000,000 votes. He said he believed no candidate would receive a majority in the electoral college, necessitating an election by the House, in which each State would be entitled to one vote.

Republican Convention Reflecting Vigorous Popular Opinion in Sharp Contrast to Boss-Controlled Democratic Convention

By Nicholas Roosevelt
For the National Republican Builders, Inc.

Even though the New Dealers have not yet succeeded in regimenting the entire nation they certainly managed to regiment the Democratic National Convention—and so many of the Democrats as can still stomach the New Deal and the Roosevelt leadership.

"Theirs not to reason why, theirs but to vote or die," seems to reflect accurately the spirit of the Philadelphia convention. It was boss-ridden, dictated and regulated. Dissenters were either excluded, ignored, silenced or smothered. The Farley fist succeeded in imposing the Roosevelt wishes. It was "take it or leave it" with the threat that if the delegates didn't "take it" they would "get it" from the machine.

The contrast to the Republican Convention of a month ago is striking. In fact, the reversal of the condition of the two parties is one of the most interesting happenings in recent political history. Only two months ago the Republicans seemed demoralized and it looked as if the Republican Convention would be a boss-ridden and drab, producing a colorless candidate without any popular appeal, whereas the Democratic Convention was expected to be full of fire and enthusiasm, reflecting popular support for Mr. Roosevelt.

But it was at Cleveland that popular support for a new man with new ideas triumphed over the consolidated efforts of old bosses. The Republican party came out of the convention new-born, with new hope and confidence, under new leadership.

In Philadelphia, on the contrary, every shred of popular appeal was steam-rollered out by boss Farley. The convention was listless, and its support of President Roosevelt puny. To be sure, the delegates obeyed their orders, with the result that there was no open break in the ranks.

But it requires no special knowledge of the political situation in America today to see that while the Democrats enter the campaign with every ostensible advantage in their favor they are fearful of defeat. They know that the defection within the party is great—that the influence of such men as Gov. Ely—and even Al Smith—is much greater than surface indications suggest. They realize that they are likely to lose many extreme radicals. Furthermore, they know that a large part of the independent Republican voters who helped elect Roosevelt in 1932 will return to the Republican fold now that an acceptable candidate has been found. Even that one-time archrival of the New Deal, General Hugh Johnson, openly predicts the defeat of Mr. Roosevelt in November. He rests his observations on his study of popular opinion throughout the country.

The swing against Mr. Roosevelt is now marked. It is at last becoming plain that, however astute his own political judgment where his own fortune is concerned, he is, in fact, the tool of Farley.

The name of Farley symbolizes to the country at large the most unsavory sort of Tammany democracy. The nation is aware that if it has four more years of Farley it will have fastened upon itself a vast Farley machine. In fact, Farley is effectively carrying forward the Tammanyization of the entire country. Partisanship, extravagance, favoritism, nepotism—everything that has gone in to the building up of the Tammany machine which has brought such shocking discredit on the politics of New York City—is now being injected into the nation-wide organization which Mr. Farley is building up.

This is a Roosevelt organization. Without it Franklin Roosevelt could not have survived politically. But the question now is whether with it he will be able to survive much longer. The people dislike Farley. They distrust Tugwell. They resent the "happy hot dogs" on the New Deal griddle. They look on Harry Hopkins as a fanatic, and on Harold Ickes as a stubborn egotist. They know that these men are Mr. Roosevelt's principal props. They realize that he cannot divest himself of responsibility for them.

In other words, the country is beginning to see that if it wishes to be rid of these political parasites it must get rid of the man who put them in office and uses them.

These men, and the conditions which they have brought about, are, of course, heavy liabilities for the New Dealers. No wonder, therefore, that Mr. Roosevelt's managers enter the campaign with dimmed hopes. What they had most feared has come to pass—the nomination of Governor Landon by the younger, more independent elements of the Republican party, and the healing of the rifts within the Republican machine. No longer is the opposition to Mr. Roosevelt headless and colorless and brainless.

Mr. Landon is, in fact, the exact antithesis of Mr. Roosevelt. To those who dislike the President personally, or distrust him, or resent what he has done and is attempting to do, the Republican candidate offers the "best bet." Here is a man who is strong, honest and simple. He puts principle above expediency and country above partisanship. He reaffirms the old faith in American principles and American traditions.

Even the voice with the smile is now becoming a liability. The American public is beginning to realize that honeyed words, dulcely spoken in vibrant terms, are no substitute for reality. The public does not yet question Mr. Roosevelt's good intentions. But it is beginning to realize that Mr. Roosevelt has exuded enough good intentions to pave the largest political hell that America has yet known.

No wonder the Roosevelt ranks are thinning.

VISIT "THE LEDGES"

Chamber Of Commerce Held Pleasant Open Meeting Tuesday

The directors of the Chamber of Commerce held a successful open meeting Tuesday evening. After a fine shore dinner served at Drift Inn, Martinsville, the party motored to Wallston, there to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Hocking at their delightful summer home, "The Ledges."

Letters were read from Rodney E. Feyler, Sea and Shore Fisheries Commissioner, and interesting folders in regard to the fishing industry were distributed. All endorsed Mr. Feyler's project of bringing back the fish industry to Maine.

At the close of the business session, the guests were served with light refreshments, with Mrs. Alma Stinson in charge.

"BEST WE EVER HAD"

That Word Comes From Littlefield Church About Vacation Bible School

"This has certainly been the best Vacation Bible School our Church has ever had," were the words spoken by a good many parents and friends who attended the closing exercises of the Littlefield Memorial Baptist Church last Friday night. The program was as near as possible a repetition of the regular morning sessions; beginning with a processional and flag salutes, followed by periods of worship, Bible study, memory work, and choruses. A fine exhibition of the hand work completed by the pupils of the four departments was on display in the Vestry.

Of the 109 pupils and teachers enrolled the average attendance for the two weeks was 90-plus. The pupils having a perfect attendance record were: Beginners: Roberta Sylvester, Nadine King, Leatrice Hortenstine, Donna Stone, Glenice Munro, Primary: William Bragg, Ruth Dorman, Lucile Stone, Dorothy Pettie, Doris Munro, Ethel Smith, Helen Candage.

Primary: Carolyn Candage, Betty Sylvester, Charlotte Munro, Kenneth Smith, Ronald Lord, Doris Gray, Grace Smith, Mavis Moore, Dorothy Holbrook, Laura Munro, Lucille Holbrook, Margaret Dorman, Barbara Mealy.

Intermediate: Elinor Nye, Lawrence Phelps.

Prizes were awarded for outstanding memory work to the following: Beginners, Glenice Munro; Primary, Austin Ulmer; Junior, Norma Munro and Jason Thurston; Intermediate, Elinor Nye.

Much appreciation is expressed to the many parents and friends who cooperated in making the school a success; also to the teachers: Mrs. Sherman Lord, Miss Kathleen Chase, Miss Marguerite Gray, Miss Evelyn Bragg, Mrs. Sidney Munro, Mrs. Wesley Thurston, Miss Ruth Sukeforth, Mrs. Willis Hooper, Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Marshall.

He fills the vacancy caused by the recent resignation of the Rev. A. Harold Plummer, now settled in Portland, and will assume his new duties Aug. 1.

Rev. Mr. Franklin came to Thomaston from Marshfield, Wis. His assignment to the Maine State Prison was his first assignment to prison work, but for some years he had made a special study of penology. The vacancies in Thomaston and Long Cove are filled by the appointment of Rev. Herbert B. Pulsifer, priest in charge of St. George's Church, Presque Isle. During July Rev. Mr. Pulsifer, is officiating in St. Andrew's Church in Millinocket.

RIDING OUT OF THE FOG

Leads To Delightful Trip Through Fields Of Clover—and, Alas! a Deluge

(By The Roving Reporter)

Mrs. Volney Pollett, and found there some relatives who were enjoying the weekend. One of them was making her visit of a practical nature by sitting in the doorway with an air rifle across her lap, repelling birds which were preying upon the vegetable garden. The location of the Pollett farm is on a hillside, and commands a wonderful view of the valley and the distant hills. Mrs. Pollett and daughter, Miss Helen Pollett, the latter a teacher in New York State are nature lovers, and are cultivating some attractive posy gardens in which we found some rare flowers. A strong temptation possessed us to tarry at this beauty spot and enjoy the proffered hospitality, but the Canadian line was a long way off, and there was much wheeling to be done.

Penobscot Bay was blanketed with fog when Bob Webster and I started out Sunday morning, and as the mist showed no signs of abatement we struck inland from Northport and headed for the Canadian border, running into some magnificent weather, which gradually developed into severe showers, and finally a prolonged downpour.

A solitary schooner lay at anchor in Rockland harbor—a sad travesty on the "good old days" when it was possible to see there a fleet of 50 or even 100 vessels. Presently this paper will have more to say on that subject, awaiting only the moment when Nate Cobb shall have completed his research.

In fields along the way many farmers have begun their haying, and the stocks looked dreary enough in the heavy mist. Fog always seems to be a camp follower of the haying season and the yachting season.

Attracting the Visitor

The State tarring crew has quite an impressive camp in one of the fields nearly opposite Ballard Park, the site where once was stored thousands of tons of field stone waiting to be crushed into material for the new highway in Rockport. I wondered then, as many others did, if it would ever be possible to grind up that tremendous assemblage of rocks, but as I remember the facts they did not have quite enough to go around. The quiet which followed the three weeks' observance of Independence Day could almost be felt, and needless to say it was decidedly welcome.

Crossing the iron bridge into Rockport the eye is caught by a modest but successful attempt to beautify the highway. Wherever I travel I find that this is being done on an increasing scale and I wonder if Rockland is fully keeping pace. We advertise for summer visitors, and if we expect them to come, and especially to come again, we must make the city so attractive they will want to do so again.

Why Not Have Benches?

When I hear people enthusing over St. Petersburg, Fla., they invariably stress the benches on which pedestrians may sit if weary. Show me a place on Main street Rockland, where visitors can do likewise unless it is the steps of the Baptist and Congregational Churches, if we expect Tillson's fence, where several generations have perched. I cannot help feeling that a row of attractive benches should be placed along the embankment opposite the Tillson estate overlooking the land reclaimed from the sea, and a portion of the harbor itself. It would not be a Dufferin Terrace, to be sure, but would be a most welcome resting place for visitors, who sometimes have to park their cars a quarter of a mile away.

We detoured in Rockport, by the way of Beauchamp Point, an altogether lovely locality, but where the highway badly needs resurfacing in some places. The foundation for a large cottage is well under way.

Shrubs and small trees have very largely taken the place of flowering plants in the famous Lincolnville rock garden.

Making a Sunday Call

Leaving Northport we say farewell momentarily to hard surface roads, but find in the town of Belmont some nice gravel highways. "Vote No on the Liquor Question" reads the placard on a car seen in Searsmont.

Just outside of Liberty village we paid a visit to the summer home of

THE PRESIDENT IS COMING

Expected Here Monday To Go Aboard Schooner Yacht Due This Forenoon

(By The Roving Reporter)

The schooner yacht Sewanna, which is soon to have a distinguished passenger in the person of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt, put into Tenant's Harbor early last night, and when The Courier-Gazette went to press was momentarily expected to poke her nose around Owl's Head and make anchorage at this port.

The press despatches have said that President Roosevelt would board the chartered yacht at North Haven next Monday, and that he would come to Rockland by rail. But according to special advices which this paper has received from Boston he may not come until Wednesday. And Mrs. Roosevelt, the President's mother is quoted in this issue as giving her belief that Mr. Roosevelt will motor to Rockland.

So we are all in a state of confused anticipation.

The Sewanna was rammed at Portsmouth, N. H., Tuesday by a fishing schooner, and the radio and press despatches say that repairs will be made at this port, which would, of course, mean at Snow's yard, but that concern had not been so informed at a late hour this forenoon.

A Portsmouth despatch says: "At the helm of the 6-year-old 56-foot craft, was a professional skipper, Capt. Elden Colbeth. He, one paid seaman and the Roosevelt boys, James, Franklin, Jr. and John, comprise the crew.

"Only 32 years old, Capt. Colbeth has followed the sea since he was 15. He was a member of the crew that manned the Amberjack when President Roosevelt made his New England cruise three years ago.

"Sailor Joseph Emmert, the only 'hand,' serves also as chef, steward and general handyman. He served in the German navy during the World War, came to the United States in 1929 and became a citizen last year.

"After the yacht reaches Campobello, the President plans to visit Lord Tweedmuir, governor general of Canada."

The Chamber of Commerce and City of Rockland will act jointly to extend the city's greetings to President Roosevelt if the opportunity offers. Judge E. C. Payson, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Committee, is in Augusta this forenoon conferring with Gov. Brann on the matter. His associates are Homer E. Robinson, Elmer B. Crockett, Dr. William Ellingwood, Alfred C. Hocking and Col. Basil H. Stinson. Mayor Leforest A. Thurston is acting as a committee of one from the city.

Franklin D. Roosevelt will be the second president to visit Rockland. The other was the late President William Howard Taft, who spoke in front of the Public Library, after a sightseeing motor trip.

PRESIDENT'S MOTHER WAS HERE

"This coming Presidential election in the lobby chatting with other guests, but expressed herself as a bit weary after her day's motor trip and retired early.

She said that she expected the President would motor to Rockland to board the schooner yacht Sewanna in which he is to make his cruise along the Maine Coast with his three sons. Mrs. Roosevelt left yesterday morning for Campobello Island, where she expects to spend five or six weeks.

About the middle of August she will turn her summer home over to the use of friends.

SHUTDOWN ORDERED

President Says He Can Devote No More Funds To Quoddy Project

President Roosevelt announced Tuesday that he could "devote no more money to Quoddy."

This seemingly puts an end to the power project at Passamaquoddy Bay by which the tides of the ocean were to be harnessed to create electric power.

The President said he was trying to find some use for the construction plant and buildings which have already been erected at Quoddy. He has not yet found an opportunity for their use, he said.

Whether the President will undertake in the next Congress, if he is reelected, to go forward with the Quoddy project, is not known. When he was asked a direct question as to whether the Quoddy project had been abandoned, he replied with the statement that he could not devote any more money to it.

He put Quoddy and the Florida ship canal in the same category. He said, however that he was considering leasing the buildings at the ship canal to the University of Florida as a training school for teachers.

Lieut. Col. Fleming, Army engineer in charge of construction on the Quoddy tidal power project has ordered a gradual shut-down of work.

"This office," declared Col. Fleming in a written order, "has been officially advised that no further funds will be allotted for the further prosecution of 'Quoddy' at the present time."

"I know a man who looks so much much like you that one could hardly tell you apart."

"You haven't paid him that $10 I lent you three months ago, have you?"

A REAL MAINE SENATOR

Our Senator, Wallace White, Jr., continues to find good words for him appearing in the columns of the press; and if he should put a hand to his ear he'd discover words in his praise falling with increasing emphasis from the lips of the people of Maine who are purposing to send him back to Washington with the largest vote ever accorded him. As a suggestion of the Senator's value to the country as well as to his constituents, let us quote this editorial from the Boston Herald, bearing the heading, "Senator White's good job":

"Honor to whom honor is due! Senator Wallace H. White, Jr. of Maine, on the day before the end of Congress, obtained at last the ratification of the international convention for promoting safety of life at sea which he had helped to negotiate at the London conference of 1929.

"During all the intervening years, this treaty has been in the keeping of the Senate committee of foreign relations. The objectors to ratification were two, Andrew Furuseth, president of the Seamen's Union of the A. F. of L. and Senator La Follette. The former was dissatisfied with a few of the labor clauses. The latter feared that certain language in the treaty might be construed at some time to contravene a few of the provisions of La Follette seamen's act. This law was sponsored by the late Senator La Follette, father of the present senator, and Mr. Furuseth fought for years for its passage. Senator White held that there was no such contravention, but out of deference to one of its members the committee refrained from taking any action.

"Four weeks ago the junior senator from Maine worked over the whole subject with the treaty division of the Department of State. The result was a resolution of ratification, containing what may be called a reservation, consisting of three 'understandings.' These are regarded by all members of the committee as clarifying only, and not as weakening in any degree the force of the treaty. They were submitted also to the representatives of labor and approved. On the floor Senator La Follette said: 'We have finally come to an agreement on this treaty.' Thereupon it was ratified without difficulty.

The treaty is comprehensive. It deals with the construction of ships, life-saving appliances, radio, the meteorological service, the ice patrol, and what might be called the rules of the road at sea and an international signal language. By appointment of the President, Mr. White, then a member of the House, served as chairman.

THOUGH LOST TO SIGHT, etc.

There are two of the city's ancient and well-remembered landmarks that somehow and somewhere have lost themselves to the public eye and ear, and in respect of which the newspaper occasionally hears raised the voice of inquiry, insistent naturally from the citizen of older growth, whose memory a good deal engages with the times long-ago, amid which these landmarks had public association. The one is the bell that in elder days called to worship the people of the Congregationalist Church; the other, more humble, but not the less attended upon by the multitude—the large and dark-brown Main street piece of crockery, out of which was ladled at the expert hand of William Hemingway the elder the seasonal refreshment known as lemonade, in quality unhampered by any false ingredients and thoroughly satisfying to the purchasing throat.

The present whereabouts of the bell appears to the lay inquirer to be undiscoverable, but doubtless there are revelatory records of its present sequestration. The episode of its lemon associate's disappearance, we should regard as the more difficult of enlightenment, but even this allusion to it will bring a watering of recollection into the throats of a wide and appreciative company of our semi-elder readers, whose palates will cast back to those summer days of its peak of popularity, and with which no citizen of that time went unsatisfied.

THE FAMOUS MARINE BAND

Under the baton of Captain Taylor Branson (above) the United States Marine Band is recognized as one of the finest musical organizations on the air waves. The familiar strains of the Marine Hymn goes out weekly from the Marine Band Auditorium in Washington, D. C.

Recognized as one of the finest musical organizations in the world, the famous Marine Band halts in its musical march Saturday to celebrate its 138th birthday.

Although musicians have long been identified with the Marine Corps, since 1775 when the Corps was first organized, it was not until 1798, that Congress authorized a marine band.

On New Year's Day 1801, the band made its first official appearance at the White House when President Adams asked that they play at a reception. Since that day the Marine Band has been the official band of the White House.

A musical community soon grew up around the quarters of the Marine Band. From it have come many fine musicians and band leaders including such men as Scala, Schneider, Santelmann and the present leader

Branson, in addition to John Philip Sousa, the late March King. In 1880, the dynamic star of John Philip Sousa, born in Washington, shone full upon the Marine Band. Much credit must go to Sousa for cultivating the taste of the nation for band music. His many compositions kept pace with a growing nation.

To William F. Santelmann, the band owes its popularity as a symphonic organization, and to the present wielder of the baton, Captain Taylor Branson, who literally grew up with the band, its reputation as an orchestral group and radio broadcasting unit. His Dream Hour and Shut-in concerts are recognized as the finest non-commercial programs on the air.

Each week over a nation-wide radio network, Captain Branson waves his baton and the Marine Band speaks the symphonic language of the world... music. Long may they play.

AT FORT WILLIAMS

Our Correspondent Tells What Knox County Boys Are Doing There

(By Charles M. Lawry)
Fort Williams, July 6

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—Another year has rolled past and here we are at the old Fort again. We arrived in camp Saturday after an uneventful trip. Over the road we had the State Police for escort and also found that Col. Savage was appearing at all the intersections. We had the right of way over all lights.

Sunday found us up at 5:30, as we were to take out the 155 guns from the store shed. The fog horns were blowing when we arrived and were going strong at 7 o'clock Sunday night without a let-up. Medical inspection and mustering in were the limit of the formations of the first day, with inoculations and vaccinations in order the following day.

We have Emery and Colson of E. Battery holding their same positions in the kitchen and if possible they are more entertaining than ever. Chet Vose and Austin Staples are in charge of P Battery's kitchen. Stape used to be our top kick and is also quite a comedian. Your correspondent still holds good on the early risers. We are never late for formations.

The 240th Band seems to be better than ever this year. Our top kick counted 530 Massachusetts cars between Thomaston and Portland on the way over.

We see the familiar face of Ted Sylvester at camp this year. He did not attend last camp. My friend, Donald Lawrence of the Q.M.'s did not get home from San Francisco and the boys certainly miss him. We welcome a new Battery, C of Saco, with Captain Ridion, formerly of Battery D in command. Looks like an up-and-coming outfit. Battery A has its baseball team equipped with new uniforms—wonder if they will slide the bases?

Battery E's advanced detail certainly has dressed up its company street and has placed very neat signs in front of each tent, giving the name of the battery, regiment and a list of the occupants. Battery B also has a baseball team and it looks as if we might have some real baseball. Soft ball is not "the old Army game." Battery P has drawn Visitors' Sunday for guard duty, going on at 6 Saturday night. No one home over the weekend, as the Battery on guard means no shore leave.

Sergeant Charles Collins, a popular fellow, is on duty with E again. We have a colorful lot of boys. Brown and Gray as well as Knight and Day. It looks now as if we fire the first week in camp, as the guns are all placed and the boys are out to make a good showing.

It has been a very lively camp thus far. The inoculations are not bothering much. We are looking forward to a concert between the 240th and Fifth Infantry Band. The initiation of the rookies will probably be held Saturday night, as everyone will be in camp then. Sergeant Sylvester McIntosh has been appointed Instructor for the recruits. There will be baseball between Batteries H and F while A plays B for the starter. As yet no date, depending

REPUBLICAN DRIVE

To Cover Every County In State — Campaigners To Be In Knox Aug. 5

U. S. Senator Wallace H. White, Jr., Republican gubernatorial nominee Lewis O. Barrows, Congressman Ralph O. Brewster and Congressional nominees Clyde H. Smith and J. C. Oliver will today begin a month's tour of Maine's sixteen counties.

County programs, including rallies, dinners and informal gatherings, will be arranged under the direction of the state committee men and women of other sections concerned. Detailed announcements will be made as soon as preparations are completed.

The three nominees to Congress will accompany Senator White and Secretary of State Barrows in their respective districts only.

TENANT'S HARBOR

Lee Andrews was at Lakewood last Sunday, the guest of Miss Ruth Barter who is this week appearing in the cast of "They Knew What They Wanted."

J. Herbert Ward and family of Providence are occupying their cottage at Hart's Neck for the summer. Miss Margaret Pratt recently returned to Belmont, Mass., with Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. on the camp schedule in regard to firing.

Have just found out there were 17 trucks, one beach wagon, two State Police cars and one sedan in our convoy. If many more rules are made we will all be staying in camp. Sunday is Visitors' Day and we anticipate a great deal of company. E and F are trying to out do each other on the menu. Rest assured either Company will put on a feed entirely satisfactory.

Hoyt Emery and Harold Colson have added Austin Staples to their act, and if they cannot keep you entertained, it's your fault!

Rockland Takes Ten-Inning Battle From Camden — Thomaston Swamps St. George

Coming Games

Tonight—Rockland at Camden.
Friday—Thomaston at St. George.
Saturday—St. George at Camden.
Sunday—Thomaston at Rockland.

The League Standing

Rocklands victory over Camden Tuesday night gives a keener slant to the League race, with Thomaston also threatening. Here are the figures:

Camden	4	1	.800
Rockland	3	1	.750
Thomaston	2	3	.400
St. George	0	4	.000

Rockland 7, Camden 6

If local baseball fans are to be treated to the calibre of baseball seen in Tuesday night's game at Community Park there should be a big crowd at each performance. The game was fast from the start, and well seasoned with plays bordering on the sensational.

The Camden sluggers liked Manager Gray's choice of pitcher, and licked their chops as they thought of what they would do with the offerings of "Chuck" Ellis. They found Chuck quite a different man on the mound than he was a year ago, and they traveled all the way to the eighth inning before they were able to bunch hits off him. Successful singles by Wheeler, Stahl and Plaisted and a home run by Lord netted four runs, and nearly closed the broad gap which had existed from the second inning. Lord's home run was partly the result of a last ball in right field, but it was a long swat and would have brought in two runs in any event. The score was tied in the ninth when Wheeler followed Leonard's single with a clutch hit that carried him to the No. 3 buoy. Wheeler soon found himself in trouble, however, for he was nicely trapped by a snappy double play by Smith and Gatti.

The tenth inning opened auspiciously for Rockland as the flies of Plaisted and Dailey being attended to very nicely by Dimick and Gay. Lord, the Camden swatting ace, followed his home run with a double, but Camden did not score again as Thomas went out Oney to Connors.

Rockland's chances looked very dubious in the last half of the tenth, for Mason fanned, and Connors went out, Plaisted to Wadsworth. Then came Smith's grounder to Lord who shot the ball to Wadsworth a second too late to catch the runner. Ellis singled, and there were two on and two out. Walter Gay who had walked four times in succession was the next batter and met the emergency by smashing out the single that brought in the winning run.

Both infielders put up a star game. In the outfield Joe Leonard made a distinguishing play by returning the ball to the plate, after Lowell's single, in season to shut off a run.

Local fans looked with approval upon Smith's work behind the bat. It had a decidedly steadying influence on the team's play. Dimick's timely swat in the second was another prominent factor in the victory.

Thomaston 16, St. George 2

Manager Sawyer's team caught St. George off its stride in Thomaston last night and romped away to a lopsided victory—so one-sided that Thomaston, with a lowly start, suddenly looms as a potential pennant chaser.

A period of successful bunting in the second inning started the Rawley team on its toboggan slide. In that inning Thomaston is credited with seven hits, most of which were dinky grounders just out of everybody's reach. That chapter netted the home team seven runs, and as if that were not sufficiently crushing Thomaston made six more runs in the next inning. This barrage, however, had its impetus in the pair of nice triples made by Felt and Woodard.

St. George's two runs were pulled off in the fifth inning after Polky had been sent home on a balk and Colbath scored on Auld's single.

Condon was in excellent form, and kept the St. George hits well scattered. Fine running catches were made by Moody and Monaghan.

Not in many years has Sea View Cemetery looked as well as it does at the present minute. More lot owners than ever before are keeping their plots in good condition and through co-operation of the city authorities every foot of the old burying ground is now neatly mowed including the several hundred neglected lots. The 800 foot iron fence is newly conditioned and painted.

There's plenty of employment for the asking, according to George W. Dyer, manager of the National Re-employment agency on the third floor of the City Building. If you want to work in a hayfield, if you want to do housework, if you wish to wait on tables, if you want to do simply common labor all you have to do is call Manager Dyer, telephone 105, and you are as good as placed if you meet up with the conditions under which the National Re-employment Bureau places applicants. Any concern or individual requiring help should communicate with Mr. Dyer.

Inasmuch as Tuesday's issue had Rev. J. Charles MacDonald leaving today for the Holy Land, and in another column having the tour postponed, the readers are perhaps enjoined to know that the postponement is correct. So untested is the version in the East that many places of interest, formerly accessible to tourists are now closed. The tentative announcement says that the tour has been postponed one year. A year passes very quickly these days, and another summer may find the popular First Baptist pastor on the high seas, not rigged up like a two-gun man.

June 14 there appeared in the New York Herald-Tribune, New York American and Boston Transcript advertisements relating to the Lions booklet "Motor Tour of the Coast of Maine." Two days later, according to George W. Dyer of the Maine Coast Publicity Association, there had come 469 requests for the book from 11 States, as far as Washington and Florida, and one from Cuba. Not only did there come requests for the book, but for tourist accommodations. The 1936 edition of "A Motor Tour of the Coast of Maine," has just come from the press, no longer an experiment but a publication of recognized value for those who wish to motor in the Pine Tree State.

Of real interest to the general public should come the report of the medical clinics directed by the Knox County Medical Society with the cooperation of the Knox County General Hospital. An eminent Boston diagnostician is present at each of these clinics to act as consultant with consequent benefit both to physician and patient. Individuals manifesting problems in diagnosis or treatment are presented by their attending physicians. Expense to the patient is limited to the cost of required laboratory examination and even these nominal charges may be waived in case of need. A clinic on diseases of the heart will be held at the hospital next Tuesday afternoon prior to the usual monthly meeting of the County Society. Individuals interested should consult their personal physician.

MORSE WAS SPEAKER

Pioneer Portland Lion Delivers Notable Address Before Local Club

Frank A. Tirrell, Jr., occupied the king lion's chair yesterday noon and maneuvered the affairs of the Rockland Lions Club in a manner which bespeaks a highly successful administration for him.

The guest speaker was Walter W. Morse of Portland, one of the vice presidents of the Federal Life and Casualty Company, and one of the pioneers of Lionism in this State. He was the third man to sign a petition for the first club in Maine—the Portland Club, formed in 1922, and has served as president of that organization. He was general chairman of the first New England Lions convention in Maine. Always a favorite with the Rockland Club, he earned its special gratitude recently by his fine speech in support of Frank Tirrell's candidacy for district governor.

Mr. Morse is a native of Swan's Island, came to Rockland in the employ of an insurance concern, and is now one of the most successful men in that business at Portland.

In his address yesterday he dealt with some people he had known, and their philosophy—the philosophy of life and living. From these old neighbors he learned such lessons as "keep on digging," "do not bite off more than you can chew," and the property of delegating others to do work. "When I was a boy," said the speaker, "we looked upon a man 40 or 50 years of age as an old man. Statistics show that whereas 50 years ago men and women of 50 years of age comprised but 12% of the population, today 18% of our population are over 50 years of age.

Most of us reluctantly accept change. We are not disposed to benefit from the experience of others or adopt the plans of the successful. The majority of people like to try something new—something different. History shows that we profit little from experience. The world has been deluded in recent years by the short-cut idea, but an analysis of the world's experience would indicate the fallacy of trying to acquire wealth or happiness, or anything else worthwhile through the short-cut process.

"We are now emerging from a period of this delusion which for a time gained a foothold in our business, economic and political life. We are again learning the old, old truth that somebody, somewhere, sometime must render service and pay the price for all which we acquire, or for any permanent success.

"I have in recent months visited 14 states and made two stops in Canada. I have talked with bank officials, hotel men, garage employees, merchants, farmers and others, and find on the whole a spirit of optimism not reflected in many years. This, as I see it, is the natural course of things which now, as always, has followed the law of supply and demand.

I find in talking with people a keener interest in politics. The Great Kwanan International, and other organizations have done much to educate the public to exercise their constitutional franchise.

Big business has always attracted, and will continue to attract the politicians, those deluded souls who believe it offers a chance to get some easy money. I do not refer to those noble men and women who spend years in meritorious service to the community, but to the demagogue who is ever following the changes in public opinion and who will take advantage of this opinion through devious and insidious methods, seeking a channel to build a bureaucracy, making a job for the faithful and handing out plums to the deserving. It is organizations like ours which must be ever alert to these activities and keep the public fully informed regarding them.

"The calamity howler is working over time. Great changes in our government, he says, are inevitable. The iconoclast has been having his inning. Through the enlarged news service, the news reels, the radio, and other manifold channels of information, we hear more about him than in the past simply because most of these bureaus of information stress the fanatical and the unusual, seldom the conservative and normal."

In the conclusion of one of the best addresses the Rockland Lions have ever heard Mr. Morse paid tribute to the work of those who belong to service clubs.

"Thousands upon thousands of sermons have been preached about it," said he, "Innumerable editorials have been written on the subject. What is it that drives them on? There are those who call it Rotary Service. Others call it the Spirit of Kiwanis. You and I call it Lionism. The World calls it altruism. But whatever name we call it, it isn't from God."

The report of Allen Murray as auditor showed a cash balance of $226.67 in the treasury. The year's receipts were $955, and the average attendance was 63.

One hundred percent attendance pins were awarded to Duke Annis and Stewart Orbeton.

Wilbur Senter and Ensign Otis were named as members of the August entertainment committee.

Guests yesterday were Philip Howard of New York, Dr. Forrest Bangs of Boston and R. S. Sherman.

King Lion Tirrell announced the appointment of the following standing committees:

Finance—Stewart Orbeton, Robert U. Collins, Harold Leach.

By Laws—Ensign Otis, Harry Wilbur, Alfred Strout.

Boys and Girls—Father Kenyon, Eugene Stoddard, Sam Sezak.

Transportation—Ralph Smith, Stafford Congdon, Crosby Ludwick.

Fellowship—Earle Ludwick, Arthur Doherty, Levi Flint.

The Carlton Bridge, the yardstick with which Maine measures its annual influx of summer people bound to favorite retreats along the coast and inland, revealed over the weekend the fact that the State has a right to feel optimistic about its tourist and summer resident business. The number of automobiles for which toll was paid Friday and Saturday was 59 percent greater than the number for the corresponding two days in 1935. The number of people increased 52 percent. This year 20,824 people crossed in 9094 cars and paid $2,736.45 tolls. In 1935, 13,719 people crossed in 5713 cars and paid $1,957.70. This year's gains are 3381 cars, 7105 people and $778.70 in receipts.

Washington, D. C.

I'm getting 22 miles to the gallon with my new Dodge...

It handles so beautifully...is so luxuriously appointed...

...and it has so many expensive-car features. Yet it costs only a few dollars more than the lowest-priced cars...and the small difference in price is more than made up in the end by the money I'm saving on gas and oil.

LECKEMBY'S ENTRY

As Seen By Fred K. Owen,
Political Writer Of a Portland Newspaper

The decision of Rev. J. Clarence Leckemby, who was candidate for Republican nomination as a member of Congress in the Second District on a Townsend Plan platform, to run as an independent, does not come as a surprise. Mr. Leckemby was runner-up to Clyde H. Smith in the primaries, the latter leading by 2000 votes. This has encouraged some of his Townsend Plan friends to think that he can win in the September election over the nominees of the two major parties, Mr. Smith and Ernest L. McLean, Democrat of Augusta.

Of course, if Mr. Leckemby's hopes are realized he will have to poll a large number of Democratic votes, for he fell far short of a majority in the Republican primary. The total vote thrown was something like 43,000. Mr. Leckemby's 9500-odd denotes of course the total Townsend Plan support in the primaries. The supporters of the other candidates except possibly some of those who voted for Mr. Rogers will naturally vote for the regular Republican nominee. This would mean that Leckemby would have to draw an impossible number of votes from the Democrats in order to be elected.

I don't know how he figures it, but on the face of the returns he won't even have a look in. When I was in Augusta Wednesday, a nice old gentleman who said he was a member of the Augusta Townsend Plan Club asked me what I thought of Mr. Leckemby running as an independent.

"You are asking a prejudiced party," I said to him. "I know," he replied, "but what do you think about it?" I replied that "I didn't see what he had to gain by it." The old gentleman replied that he didn't know either.

The fact of course is, that Mr. Leckemby did not poll anywhere near as many votes in the primaries as was commonly expected he would. Most people with whom I have talked looked for him to be nominated. It was the general idea that he had a much better chance of the nomination than did Mr. Oliver in the First District, but it did not turn out that way. The only possible thing his candidacy as an independent can accomplish is the election of the Democratic nominee.

In order to petition his name on the ballot he must get approximately 1000 names. Those who signed for him before can of course sign for him again, but those who signed for other candidates cannot sign his papers. To go around and get 1000 names before next Friday when the petitions must be in is quite a stunt. It can be done, but the canvassers will have to get busy. His name will probably go on the ballot, but I would not be surprised if it didn't at that—Fred K. Owen in the Portland Sunday Telegram.

GRANDMA'S ADVICE

(For The Courier-Gazette)
I agree with O. B. Merry—Gertie Gloom is a bit contrary; I do not know just what she means. Perhaps she, too, isn't what she seems. But cheer up, Grandma, don't you fret. Maybe you'll wear diamonds yet. When you are rich with coins and papers. Stepping high and cutting capers. When you get your old age pension, She'll sit up and pay attention; Then be sorry she was so mean. And tried to smash your proudest dream.

When she comes a-flirting 'round, Just show her that your head's still sound. Show her, too, you have no room. For such black clouds as Gertie Gloom.

Tennis Players Organize

The Tennis Club held a meeting for organization at the Town hall, last Thursday night and much interest was taken in the project.

Officers elected were: Bradley Pipkin, president; Charles Trone, secretary-treasurer. Plans were made to start work on the court Saturday its location to be on the lot between the home of Mrs. Katherine Wade and the Andrews apartment house on Union street.

The court which has been staked out, and which will be open to the public, will have as foundation, ten inches of rock and gravel, the surface of which will be a mixture of clay and sand.

The Club has received donations, including the use of a truck for the hauling of rock by the Sheldon Filling Station, and gasoline from the Warren Garage Co. Mrs. Jane Andrews will give the wire for the outside and for the tennis net. The organization is appreciative of this interest and of the donations of money from several of the townspeople, who thus are aiding in providing a place of clean amusement for the young people and from which they themselves will receive enjoyment in watching the games. The club hopes that others will help in the completion of the court and in furnishing a few seats for visitors. Work will start Saturday, and it is hoped that a goodly gathering will expedite the work.

Mrs. Josephine S. Bohnnell

Funeral services for Mrs. Josephine Shibles Bohnnell were held Friday at the home on Beech street with Rev. G. F. Currier officiating. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, including many from out of town and the beautiful floral offerings were silent testimony of the high esteem in which the deceased was held by all who knew her.

Mrs. Bohnnell was a life long resident of the town and her entire married life was spent in the house where her death occurred, the house having been built by her husband, Henry Bohnnell, at the time of their marriage.

She found her greatest happiness in doing for others. A loving wife devoted mother, and a true friend to all who crossed her path, young or old, are tributes which fittingly describe her true nature and her passing which came only two weeks after her death.

She is survived by her husband, Henry Bohnnell, at the time of their marriage.

Henry Kontio, manager of the State of Maine Blueberry Growers' Association, reports that he is busy day and night for the past few weeks supplying the members with dust to put on their blueberries. The files have been coming out in large numbers during the past week. Several tons of dust will be used by the association this year, most of the men apply two dusts during the season.

Maynard Kinney of St. Georges River road, Thomaston, reports a very good hatching season. He had a market for many more day-old chicks if he could have gotten them hatched.

Poultrymen should not forget the date of the auto tour of the Northeastern Poultry Producers' Council which takes place Aug. 25.

A new henhouse is being built by Foster Jameson, Waldoboro. It will be a three-deck house, 24 feet deep. Mr. Jameson is also going to start to rebuild his incubator house which burned a week ago. He has already ordered a 20,000 egg incubator to replace the two that burned.

HAPPY HOPE FARM

Busy Days For Everyone There—Writer Sees Many "Drunks" Here

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—These are busy days here on the farm and there are more tasks in each than we find time and strength to accomplish. After all, our bodies are made of perishable material, complicated machines that break down under abuse. We cannot drive these human machines at 90 miles an hour and expect them to stand up under the strain. We are not built for the race track, but for steady, quiet traveling through the everyday tasks and pleasures. We should stop at the danger sign of over fatigue of body or mind.

The bird families have all raised youngsters and are now engaged in raising a second family. Crops are doing well and would do better if we could have a rainy day. The brisk breezes soon dry out the moisture of the occasional showers. "Harry," a large bay horse, has been added to the animal personnel of the farm and is proving very useful in haying. We often pass the piney woods where he liberated "Shamrock" the squirrel, but have not seen him. I noted that "Ye Editor" gave him a new name, "Shamrock." The name "Shamrock" is supposed to be Narragansett Indian for squirrel but all know the country in which flourishes the green shamrock.

We were at home on the Fourth except for a short ride in the early evening. We saw a roadster that had met with disaster. It was overturned by the roadside, with the number plates missing. The owner of the land on which it rested, said he was at the scene working a few minutes before and no car was there. Neither did anyone see or hear the accident. This fact and the missing plates made the accident something of a mystery. What a pity the cup that takes away the sobriety of our people has been made so free in our land! If we could have repeal of prohibition or if we could have beer with a small per cent alcohol, bootleggers would go to the bottom and everyone would be going to be temperate and happy. This is an example of the wrong thinking of today.

So long as the lid of prohibition was kept on the kettle of alcoholic brew, there was bubbling and boiling within, but the poisonous steam was not escaping to spread abroad. Now, with the lid off, all the imps of hell that issue from the use of alcohol as a beverage have been loosed to work ruin and havoc among our people.

I was in Rockland one evening recently when a convention was being held there. Having become separated from my husband, I walked up and down Main street, and a short distance on Park street looking for him. In that walk I saw more drunken folk than I ever saw in the city of Rockland, and I lived there three years a number of years ago. While a resident, I have been out on the streets in the evening, at times when several hundred sailors were visiting the city and I was never spoken to in anything but a respectful manner on the street. This was when the prohibition law was in effect.

The other night more than one male creature, in an inebriated condition called me "baby" and accosted me. To say that I was utterly disgusted is putting it mildly. One day I picked up a whiskey bottle, with a little of the liquor left in it, so I knew that it was what it had held. On the label was a picture of an elderly farmer, in straw hat and glasses, with a pipe in his mouth. A farmer, honest and respectable, having his portrait on the bottle of poison that destroys!

Looking further I found two more labels which told me that two States and the U. S. government had all had a part in distilling and distributing this bottle of whiskey. Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Maine joining hands with Uncle Sam in putting this bottle of destruction into the hands of some person to destroy that person body and soul!

Anyone who has ever had to stand and hear the vile epithets a drunken person heaps upon those nearest and dearest, who has watched over a person whose physical and moral senses are degraded and distorted by liquor,

"When shall I turn my cows into the plot of millet?" was a question asked recently by Bertram Ricker of Nobleboro. He has a fine piece this year and expects several weeks' feed during July and August. The plot will be seeded next year.

Many poultrymen have asked the question, "How much cement is needed to put in a concrete floor?" To lay 100 square feet, one inch thick, it takes three bags of cement in a 1:3 mixture.

With The Homes

Canning bees are to be held throughout July and August where those that desire to do so may have their produce canned at their local Farm Bureau meeting. Those taking produce will need to supply their own glass jars or tin cans may be ordered through the community foods project leader. The canning bee will start at 9 daylight and will continue all day.

Following are the meetings scheduled next week which Miss Lawrence, Home Demonstration Agent, will attend: Wednesday, July 15, Appleton; Thursday, July 16, Rockland—here foods leaders from Rockport (Mrs. Inez Packard), Simonon (Mrs. Cecil Annis), Tenants Harbor, (Mrs. Phyllis Sutherland) will attend; Mrs. Mildred Ricker, Nobleboro, county foods leader will also be present Friday, July 17, Union, at Mrs. Maude Caldwell's home.

BUILDING TRAWLERS

New Impetus Being Given To the Fisheries Industry In Maine

The following communication has been received from Fred Murkland, representing the Forty-Fathom Fisheries, 30 Fish Pier, Boston.

New impetus has been given to the fishing industry in Maine, and it is looking ahead toward certain prosperity and the prospect of fishing ports second to none along the coast. Construction of new vessels at Bath, and increasing volume at the huge fish preparation plant at Vinalhaven have given new life to the industry which, under threat of uncontrolled foreign competition, received the "cold shoulder" from the federal government.

The Forty-Fathom Fisheries of Boston is now building three new diesel-motored trawlers at the Bath Iron Works. The first will be launched about the middle of next month, and the others in September. Construction of the three trawlers, vessels which are of distinctly American design, will cost the Forty-Fathom Fisheries nearly $600,000. They are a radical departure from the old type of English designed trawler which has remained unchanged for nearly 30 years.

These new vessels mean more to Maine than is apparent. Half their cost is for labor. So, nearly $300,000 is going toward bringing back good times to scores of workmen and their families. As far as possible, all materials used in construction are purchased in Maine.

Moreover, the entire fishing industry awaited the move made by Forty-Fathom Fisheries, and public announcement of its plans resulted in additional shipbuilding contracts.

But construction of the three trawlers in Maine's leading shipyard is only one point of the company's interest in Maine. At Vinalhaven is the largest fish plant in the state. Since its beginning 10 years ago the plant has doubled in value until now it is a $500,000 affair, paying thousands of dollars in taxes and employing anywhere from 100 to 200 men, according to the season. It has afforded an unexcelled market for Maine fishermen, a market sorely needed and one which absorbs thousands of pounds of fish every week. Through the depression the company has kept the plant operating at full capacity preparing salt and canned fish, and its growth is continuing, to make Maine a leader in the fishing industry and guarantee prosperity for her fishermen.

who has seen and endured the unhappiness use of liquor as a beverage can and does bring into human lives, can ever use the word good in connection with the selling or consuming of liquor. The inebriated man or woman knows no real happiness, yet they blame their unhappiness on everything and everyone but their real enemy, the stinging serpent that lies coiled to strike in every bottle of alcoholic beverage. If our good angels rejoice in the right ways of man, how must the devil's angels dance with glee when they see a young man or woman raise the alcoholic cup to their lips for the first time!

Whiskey should be used as one uses morphine or other dangerous drugs. Suppose we all went around with a hypodermic needle using morphine at all times and places. That procedure would not be one whit more dangerous or fatal to physical and spiritual well being, than going about drinking alcoholic beverages. That bottle of whiskey had had 80 percent alcohol. Imagine the contents in a man's stomach and the effect on his brain and the hand that guides an automobile!

Let strong drink be used only by doctors and nurses with a conscience. Whiskey has its uses in cases of illness. It has brought warmth and life back to frozen bodies in the snows of the far North. But on every bottle put a death's head, the mark of poison, and do not hide its deadly qualities with pretty labels or let it be sold as a beverage, a use for which it was never intended. Honest, right thinking folk of Rockland, of all the cities and towns of America, what are we going to do about it?

HIDE AND SEEK

(For The Courier-Gazette) And tonight I thread the marshes, When the birds are all asleep, There to seek you in the rushes Where the meadow-rue is deep; Then I hear the waters purring As they wash upon the sand Where the yellow moon is hurling Golden waves upon the land.

I do not find you in the rushes When the black-birds nest in spring, So I hasten through the marshes, But no answer comes a-wing; Then I scale the rose-bound hedges, And safe beside a gurgling stream I find you sleeping on the sedges, Sweetly smiling in your dream.

WITH THE BOXERS

The championship of Knox County is at stake in the main bout at the Tillson Avenue Stadium Friday night when Ponzi Cochran of Rockland swaps punches with Popeye Manta of Owl's Head. This bout comes as the result of Ponzi's challenge, and some timid souls think it will be necessary to send flowers to his residence. But those familiar with the package of dynamite which Cochran carries in each mitt are equally positive that this time it will take more than a handful of spinach to save the big boy from the head.

The semi-final bout will introduce George Nimor of Gardiner and George Bernard of Ft. Williams. Both boys fight hard from the 10-second bell to the final gong. A companion semi-final will be fought by John Dudley of Augusta and Fred Burke of Ft. Williams.

The prelin is really a semi-final, and will introduce K. O. Brown of Ft. Williams and Battling Seacock of Augusta.

FLUSH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste, poisonous matter may develop, causing serious trouble. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, which have been used successfully by millions of people for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills at your druggist.
